

All The Troubles Of The World
by Alan Paramor (as Alan Moore) & Peter Pavey (as Partridge Green)

All the troubles of the world are on my shoulders
I've got worries, I've got problems on my mind
Oh there's so much to do, but somehow I'm gonna see it through
Before I leave this world behind

I had a little scheme to make a profit
But I kept losing money ev'ry day
Why the only time I made a living off it
The tax collector took it all away
Now my bank account is overdrawn with debits
And the manager's been phoning up for weeks
How I wish that I could find some little credits
Just to put some rosy colour in his cheeks

But all the troubles of the world are on my shoulders
I've got worries, I've got problems on my mind
Oh there's so much to do, but somehow I'm gonna see it through
Before I leave this world behind

I found a bit of woodworm in the attic
No bigger than the size of half a crown
But the builder when he called was quite emphatic
Now he says he's gonna pull the whole place down
And the stork was due to pay another visit
A boy or a girl now which one would it be?
So when the doctor called I asked what is it?
And he said "Congratulations, you've got three!"

So all the troubles of the world are on my shoulders
I've got worries, I've got problems on my mind
Oh there's so much to do but somehow I'm gonna see it through
Before I leave this world behind

All the troubles of the world are on my shoulders
I've got worries, I've got problems on my mind
Oh there's so much to do but somehow I'm gonna see it through
Before I leave this world behind
